Description

For the music lover, a charming miniature Dutch silver model of a cello bearing English import hallmarks for London 1898.

Hallmarking and date marking items of silver began in the Netherlands around 1503 but there was no standardised procedure in place and each town had its own scheme for this practice. After 1814 two Dutch national hallmarking standards were established and operated - 93.4% silver and 83.3% silver.
