Description

Made in the reign of George III in 1814, this lovely pair of Georgian silver goblets have bulbous flared-lip bowls and round, tapering stems. The bodies are attractively engraved with stippled engraving and depicting exotic birds among foliage; all typical design features of the period.

A thread edge runs round the spreading feet, featuring delicately stylised engraved leaf motifs, and the interiors are gilded.

This is a perfect pair of goblets for imbibing either wine or water.
