Description

Impressive and superior quality antique silver cutlery set made by the 19th century royal silversmith to George IV, Paul Storr, in the Stag Hunt and Bacchanalian patterns. All pieces were made by Storr in 1822 and the total weight is 160.56 troy oz (4994g).

The main dining pieces (table knife, fork and spoon) are in the Staghunt pattern, representative of the meat courses for which these pieces would be used. The top face of each piece features hounds bringing a stag to bay featuring a man holding back one of the hounds in high relief. The backs depict classical hunting paraphernalia motifs including arrows, quivers, hunting horns, daggers and bows.

The silver dessert set (dessert knife, fork and spoon) are in the Bacchanalian pattern which depicts scenes and paraphernalia of carousing and jollity to represent the sweet pudding courses.

Each piece of cutlery is engraved with a family crest of a stag passant and this fine silver cutlery service comprises:

Stag Hunt

- 12 table forks
- 12 table knives
- 12 tablespoons
- 3 piece carving set

Bacchanalian

- 12 dessert forks
- 12 dessert knives
- 12 dessert spoons
