Description

Fine neoclassical style mahogany tray with a silver gallery fitted with raised cast handles, made in the late 18th century. The silver gallery is hand engraved with clear bright-cut decorations featuring swags, bows and trailing foliage, all typical motifs of the neoclassical design era. Crisp bead pattern mounts run around the bottom edge of the tray.

The tray is accompanied and fits on a later-made, low mahogany low, making this an excellent cocktail drinks station.

The height stated is to the top of the raised handles.
