Description

Antique silver brandy warming pan, with stand and burner. Although made during the latter part of queen Victoria's reign, the style harks back to the 1720s. The pan has a side handle made from ebonised fruit wood.

Of course, warm brandy is a treat on any cold evening, but this article comes into its own on Christmas day.

The burner and wick should be used with odourless and smokeless fuel, readily available from good hardware shops.
